WHO IS CHECKLISTMOMMY?

ChecklistMommy is a writer living in LA whose real name is Sarah Kate Levy. In her youth, she wanted to write novels. Now she writes screenplays, TV projects, and this blog, which documents her attempts to keep order in a home over-run by four kids, one husband, a dog, two cats, and a constantly rotating cast of fish in a filthy tank whose maintenance falls firmly in the camp of "his jobs."

WHAT'S THE DEAL WITH THIS BLOG?

This blog can show you how to organize your medicine cabinet, or offer you a cool trick for keeping your kids from self-destructing in a theme-park gift shop. It offers advice about raising strong, independent, adventurous kids who won't be targeted by predators – or assholes in general. Every once in a while it considers marriage maintenance, or the care and feeding of American Girl knock-offs available at Target for one-third the price. And it sometimes gets all LOUD AND SHOUTY about marriage equality (pro) and vaccines (also pro. Because of science and shit.)

ChecklistMommy's readers don't seem to mind the SHOUTING half as much as her husband, MrBigIdeas, does. In fact, it seems they kinda like it.

HOW CAN CHECKLISTMOMMY WORK WITH YOU?

Sarah is available to write and speak on any number of parenting and partnering topics.

She also loves promoting products and brands that appeal to her particular readership: parents trying to organize their homes and families, raise happy, capable, independent and involved citizens, and somehow maintain a sense of humor/self in the face of enormous, unceasing demands upon their sanity (aka known as kids, spouses, jobs, and school committees).

Yes, chocolate and coffee fit under that rubric. So do great kids' books, awesome plexiglass boxes, and spa packages. Really. Sending Sarah to a spa would greatly service her readers ... one of whom is her husband, who wouldn't mind if she relaxed just a liiiiiiiiitle bit more.
